

PCB Field Analytical Technology Demonstration

September 21 - September 25, 1998

PCB FIELD ANALYTICAL TECHNOLOGY DEMONSTRATION

During the period from September 21 through 25, 1998, the Site Characterization and Monitoring pilot of the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Environmental Technology Verification (ETV) program will be verifying the performance of EnviroLogix Inc.'s PCB in Soil Tube Assay at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory (ORNL) in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. The semi-quantitative test kit is a competitive enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay. This will be the 7th PCB field analytical technology to be evaluated under the ETV program.

To showcase the technology, a Visitors Day will be held on from 9 am to 12 pm on Wednesday, September 23, 1998 at the demonstration site at ORNL. Those attending will have the opportunity to observe field sample analyses in progress and to discuss the technology with the vendor. Advanced registration for the Visitors Day is required. Please contact Amy Dindal, (423) 574-4863, dindalab@ornl.gov for more information.

DIRECTIONS TO ORNL

From Knoxville: On Westbound I-40/75, get off at Exit 376, and head northwest on TN-162, the Pellissippi Parkway. Follow TN-162 about 6 - 7 miles, until you merge with TN-62, and go through the little community of Solway. Cross over the Clinch River, and bear to the left. Where the road (TN-62) splits off the right, and goes into the city of Oak Ridge, continue straight, and follow the signs to ORNL. ORNL is about 7 - 8 miles out Bethel Valley Road. As you approach the main site, you will see a large (several stories tall) concrete tower. Go past it and immediately after you pass the swan pond, turn left into the main research area of ORNL. Go to the Visitor Center and pick your entrance badge. A field demonstration team member will escort you to the demonstration site.
